GREAT READING DAM WILL FLOOD GRAVES

Reservoir Will Cover Two Old Cemeteries.

Reading, Pa.—Construction of the huge Maiden creek dam by the city of Reading, the contract for which was awarded to the McLean Construction company of Baltimore, at a bid of $588,000, will wipe out two rural cemeteries. Actual work will be started shortly and the dam will back up the waters of the creek, covering parts of three townships, to serve as an impounding reservoir to take care of Reading's water needs for many years.

The descendants of the Maiden creek pioneers feel keenly the desecration of their cemeteries. Many of the residents of Maiden Creek, Ontelaunee and Richmond townships have relatives buried in the plot at the Friends' meeting house or in Forney's cemetery, both of which are included in the area proposed to be flooded.

Goes Back to 1730.

The burial plot of the Friends' meeting house dates back to 1730, with interments as recently as two years ago. The first burials were made in unmarked graves. The faith of those worshiping there forbids any showing whatsoever, with the result that no tombstones were erected to mark the last resting place of the pioneer settlers of the section. Since the cemetery is to be relocated it will mean that the entire plot to a depth of at least six or seven feet will have to be gone over, as it is impossible to locate all the graves. Only the more recent are marked. It is this that disturbs those who have relatives interred there.

The parents of State Secretary of Agriculture Frank P. Willits and Wilhlans Willits, an indictment dealer, at Calcium, are buried in the old graveyard. Both men made a plea before the state water power and resources board to save the cemetery, but the board granted the permit to the city to proceed with the work of erecting the dam. Many other descendants of the pioneers of the Maiden creek region had representatives at the hearing before the state board, some of the oldest families in that section being represented. The board, however, refused to delay the matter of water supply.

Forney's graveyard is a family plot and is located on the farm of Jacob Forney. The entire farm will be taken by the city and the burial plot will have to be relocated. This has been the burial place for the family for a number of generations and always has been maintained in first-class condition.

Historic Landmark.

The destruction of the Friends' meeting house will remove an historic landmark. It was erected in 1730 by the Society of Friends and has weathered the storms of almost two centuries. In late years it has been used as a place of worship, but hardly a day passes that one or more descendants of those responsible for its creation do not visit the hallowed spot.

Down through the ages the old meeting house has stood as a monument to the efforts of the Lightfoots, Starrs, Parvins, Wylers, Penrosos, Lees, Houltons and others, who were among the first settlers. They blazed the trail in an uncleared land and, after many years, were successful in giving Berks one of the most productive agricultural sections, only to have their descendants view the disturbance of the remains resting for more than a century in the burial plot.

The erection of the impounding dam is a big undertaking and has been under consideration for some time by the city council. It will solve Reading's water-supply problem for many years to come.

Anonymous Rector Gives Phone Advice to Troubled

London.—Anybody with troubles other than financial, may, by calling East 0518, London, talk them over with a sympathetic rector. This is the telephone of an anonymous rector who has considerable leisure and has consented to give advice on religious and social problems to persons who feel the need of talking over their affairs with some experienced and disinterested person.

"If I can give a word of encouragement and advice to persons in trouble, it will afford me much pleasure," says the rector. "I prefer to remain anonymous, and I believe most persons in trouble also want to talk without making their identity known. But if there are troubled persons who want personal interviews with me, I shall be glad to make appointments at my home."

Intermarriage Blots Out Hawaiian Races

Honolulu.—If interracial marriages in Hawaii continue at the present rate, it will be a wise child, after a few generations, who even knows to what race his ancestors belonged, in the belief of Dr. Romanso Adams, head of the department of sociology at the University of Hawaii.

Thirty-five per cent of the marriages of white men in the islands are with women of other races, Doctor Adams said. More white men than women contract interracial marriage, because there are more white men here, owing to the presence of large numbers of soldiers.

The pure-blooded Hawaiians and Portuguese are disappearing, he said, while the part-Hawaiian and the part-Portuguese groups are growing.

HUNTS TREASURE SUNK ABOUT 1700

Logan Expedition Seeks Gold of Lost Vessel.

New York.—Maj. R. A. Logan, manager of the mapping division of the Fairchild aerial surveys, left New York for a treasure hunt in Nova Scotia, which, he says, may net him at least $100,000 and perhaps $2,000,000.

The treasure was the cargo of a French "pay ship" which fell into the hands of the English off Cape Breton Island about the year 1700.

After various vicissitudes the crew of the French vessel managed to sink the treasure in Canadian lakes, but were prevented by the English from returning to claim it. All trace of it was eventually lost and repeated searches failed to give a hint of its whereabouts.

Major Logan discovered last winter, in an old Spanish narrative, an account of how the treasure passed into the hands of a Spanish privateer. The captain of this vessel hanged the Frenchman who gave him the information, but the captain was prevented by the French from salvaging the treasure. He left the records for his son, however, and it is this record which Major Logan is using as his guide.

Knowing the country well, Major Logan last spring bought up all the land on which the treasure can possibly be hidden if the Spanish records are accurate.

"All I have to do now is to dig," said the major just before his departure, "and I'm so sure I've got the right dope I'm willing to spend five months digging if necessary. I'll have two laborers helping me. That's all there is to my expedition."

"Man Without a Country" Has Many Allies in U. S.

Washington.—The "man without a country" of book fame would have plenty of company were he to set foot on American shores.

More than 1,000,000 persons in the United States, or approximately 1 per cent of the total population, are in the same fix and most of them don't know it.

This revelation was made by Harry E. Hull, commissioner of immigration, in discussing some of the queer workings of the immigration laws.

"You can safely say," he asserted, "that there are more than a million persons in this country today who cannot claim citizenship of any land. A great majority of them are unaware of this, but quite a few of them who are don't seem to care."

The commissioner explained that this huge total of "outcasts" was created largely by aliens who have overstayed their temporary entries, and by tourists, who, en route to some other country, stopped off here, found a job, and settled down. Many also came over the borders when restrictions were less rigid, lost their original citizenship by remaining here too long and then forgot or ignored American citizenship requirements.

Hull said his bureau never seeks out these noncitizens, but often comes in contact with them. Some are amazed to find out that they have no legal claim to any citizenship when they apply for passports or re-entry permits; others learn about their status when they go before a court to sue or in some other legal proceeding.

"It works the other way around, too," he asserted. "An American can go abroad and lose his citizenship here and there also if he is ignorant or careless about the law."

Has Self Arrested, but Can't Get Guilty Verdict

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—James Harrington, thirty-one years old, had himself arrested for disturbing the peace by fighting, charged himself with the offense and testified against himself in police court here.

He told the judge that he met two acquaintances on the street here and one of the men asked him where he was going.

"It is none of your business," Harrington testified, he replied. The fight ensued.

The judge took the case under advisement and later dismissed it.

"I want to beat that fellow to it and get the trial over with," Harrington explained.

Noisy Radio Lands Owner in Jail Cell

New York.—Long Beach's midnight curfew law clashed with a radio belonging to a Long Beach resident, and at last accounts the law seemed to have the better of the argument.

The radio belongs to Edward H. Dobbs.

When Dobbs retired, weary with the strain of the holiday, the "juice" was still turned on. A while after he had gone to bed the radio picked up some jazz orchestra somewhere and began to relay the strains to the neighborhood.

When the strains continued until twenty minutes after midnight a neighbor telephoned the police and had a detail sent to the Dobbs home.

According to the police Dobbs was peeved and refused to stop the radio. It was turned off by one of the policemen and Dobbs was taken to the police station attired in his pajamas.

SEND ABD-EL KRIM TO ISLAND OF REUNION

France Picks Future Home of Riff Chief.

Washington.—Abd-el-Krim, for two years defender of the Riff against the armies of Spain and later France, is to be exiled. News from Paris puts the Island of Reunion in the limelight as the future permanent home of the Moroccan insurgent.

"France carries a full stock of islands usable for exiles," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "Madagascar was first suggested for Krim, but the weight of decision falls 400 miles southeast of Madagascar on Reunion.

"What good exile islands have you nowadays? one may imagine the French minister of war planning the minister of colonies.

"'Some very good ones, indeed,' the colonial minister certainly could reply. 'There's Devil's Island in French Guiana for criminals, and then there's New Caledonia away out in the Pacific, a sterling paradise of the South Seas. How about Madagascar? Lots of room on Madagascar. Splendidly situated near the Equator. Or Reunion! There's a perfect retreat for political exiles. Forty-eight miles long and twenty-four miles wide, two volcanoes and only 107 vessels dock each year.'

"Abd-el Krim is quite familiar with Europe. It may subtract from the inconvenience of exile for him to be set down in an island predominantly European. To be sure the Hegiiones are not as purely Cuncasian as the British Dutch of South Africa. Still, 167,000 of the population of 172,000 are classed as Europeans. Indeed, Reunion is a department of France. The commonly accepted departments of France are within 380 miles of Paris, Reunion is 7,000 miles by steamer and train from Paris.

"Even the name Reunion has taken from time to time show its intimate link with Europe. Like a lady fair in days of old when knight and lady wore ribbons of the same color, Reunion has changed its name with the rise of new political conquerors on the continent. Mascarenhas was its first name in honor of a Portuguese discoverer who sailed when Portugal was a first rate power. Louis XIII was in ascendant in 1648 when Richcourt claimed it for France, so it became Bourbon Island. That name was impossible to the Revolutionists. The island therefore became Reunion until a new 'bright' arose in Europe, when it became Ile Bonaparte. Since 1848 Reunion has been the official name.

"Conditions, geographical, climatic, and industrial, have changed less frequently than the island's name. Reunion, ever since its settlement, has been a sort of agricultural five-layer cake. The shore level is marked by the gardens of the ring of towns. Next comes a sweet layer; the sugarcane belt. Then a dark green layer of forests. Fourth is the plateau region where European vegetables can be raised. The fifth layer is the brown of the volcanic peaks. Only occasionally is Reunion 'cake' frosted with white snow because the warm sea all about tempers the climate.

"If Mr. Krim cares to examine a slice of Reunion he will find it 'sugared-and-spice-and-everything-nice.' The second layer, as mentioned above, is mostly sugar. Sugar and one of its progeny, rum, are the chief exports of the island; and during the World war it profited and perhaps profiteered on sugar. In the spice line Reunion offers cloves. And thereby hangs a tale.

"Our medieval ancestors loved to eat. Where the Twentieth century spends its surplus on six cylinders, the Fifteenth century spent its pin money on its palate. Its idea of a square meal was red meat well seasoned. Seasoned well did not mean a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. Our forebears doused pepper on their meat and stuck it full of cloves. Spice islands or the Moluccas in the tangled straits of the East Indies were found to be the native habitat of cloves. The joy with which the Portuguese greeted this discovery could only be equaled today by the burst of a Texas gusher oil well. They tried to keep their find a treasured secret. But the Dutch, who came into ascendancy restricted cloves to Amboyna Island and ordered their navy to destroy all other clove trees every place. In the face of death at the hands of the Dutch, a man named Potvre introduced the clove tree to Reunion and neighboring Mauritius, thus emancipating Europe from the Dutch monopoly.

Geranium Town.

"Many orchards of clove trees with their shiny evergreen leaves can be seen on Reunion. The clove buds are in clusters. First they are green, then they turn red, when they are ready to be picked.

"Another specialty from which Reunion profits is vanilla. The production of vanilla orchid beans, Reunion shares with the Seychelles to the north and with Mexico.

"There are three towns on Reunion with a population of more than 18,000 —St. Denis, St. Pierre and St. Paul. If Abd-el Krim is given his choice, St. Pierre would appear to be the most attractive for a permanent residence. It is the center of the island's trade in essence of geranium. The flower that decorates our houses and gardens, is a commercial product here. What a prospect. A life of pensioned ease on a tropical isle amid acres of geraniums!"

Putting Teeth in Separator Claims

TALK is cheap, and it is easy to make extravagant claims. This is true of cream separator claims. If there is the slightest doubt in your mind which separator really does skim cleanest, just try this simple test:

Put a De Laval side-by-side with any other separator of equal capacity. Then let the De Laval demonstrate. You can arrange this test. Mix 10 gallons of milk thoroughly and let it stay at normal room temperature or 70 degrees. Run half through each separator. Skim both bowl and skimmer of each separator. Weigh the cream. Then run the De Laval skim-milk through the other machine and vice versa. Weigh and test the butter-fat in the cream that each gets from the other's skim-milk. Certainly that the De Laval skims cleaner, is easier to turn and more convenient to wash.

The new De Laval is the best cream separator ever made. It has the unique "floating" bowl—the greatest separator improvement in 25 years. It is guaranteed to skim cleaner, run easier and last longer. It is the crowning achievement of 48 years of separator manufacture and leadership.

We read in a current issue of a popular journal an article on "Intensive Farming in Florida" in which it says:—Near Green Cave Springs, Fla., some twenty miles south of Jacksonville is an intensive farming experiment where any family, that can support itself for a year, is allowed to come and raise what it can and sell it, and move on if not satisfied to purchase and remain. But the thirty odd families that have tried the new plan, have elected to stay.

A considerable step forward has been made by the Horace Mann School, of New York, which has abandoned a considerable part of the study of fractions, which is the bane of child life, this was done because it was found after a survey, that very few business men make much use of these troublesome things; but resort to decimals every way more practical.
